Fire Alarm Turned in and Brave Man Injured

CITY DAILIES FAIL TO SCENT THE DISASTER

FLASH

A big hurricanc struck on Tuesday, April 1.

Destruction, havoc, Demolition, rule, extirpation, extermination and tough luck struck the Unversity of Omaha campus this morning in the shape of a terrifying thing.

The list of those involved has not yet been completed. It is thought to exceed one thousand, although this rumor may be a trifle exaggerated.

I. Peabody Winkle, old settler of these parts, told the reporter that he had never seen the like of what happened on the campus in "all my born days." The thing was com ing for some time, but when it arrived it was paradoxical in nature and twisted these ather and you.

Faculty members have declined to comment on the situation; students are aghast at what happened; city dailies have not yet scented the de struction and leave this story a complete accop.

Above see a picture of a man and a Bull. The Bull seems be angry with the man and is reared upon his hind quarters in an attitude which does not promise ultimate happiness for the man of "Dad" Elliott; and things about should the Bull prove successful in his attempt. This is Nature.

Defending himself from the attack of the Bull is a man. The man has in his hand a sword which might easily pierce the hide of the Bull and disgruntle him to say the LEAST. But the object and project is to force the sword point into the hide of the Bull. This once done, the rest should be EASY.

The Bull was born into a BAD environment. His heritage was not so hot, either. He has an instinctive tendency to pounce upon and BUTT any person, thing, or object which shows itself to be to doors in Super is sinesold RED in color or to display RED upon its person. The vigilance committee was in to see us and threatened the board of insanity if we did not comply. And, as Mayor Metcalfe said, all journalists are half-cracked anwaps. So we complied.

THOSE WHO know us are aware that the Hearst publication and this one have nothing in comfon (save for the innocence of our business manager) and so we had better say nothing. This being the kind of an issue that it is, we would only get into more trouble than we are to be in yet today. So peace rains.

BILL BOARDS

While trying to think of an idea to write on for this issue, our clever editor made the remark: "Why not Saturday and Sunday mornings. write on 'Barnam's Fat Lady.' Thinking it over, the subject seemed rather broad; and would be rather hard to get in The Gateway, which late for four o'clock classes. sir, this is the is rather narrow. So I will have to dispense with it and write upon something else. After a few minutes silence (a miracle in The Gateway office). Mr. Editor suggested writing upon "Billboards." I used to write on blackboards, but as I'm not used to writing on billboards it is sure to be a failure. But as I know nothing about it, I will write on it.

What is a billboard? A billboard is a sign—but a sign of what? No. that couldn't be. A billboard couldn't be a sign of what. It is a sign for every person to stop, count his money, and then go and buy a package of Chesterfields or a carload of Camels. In the last analysis, it is a means of making the Scotchman compromise with the Jew. Billboards are to a great extent used by paupers. When they get an over-supply of twenty dollar bills they paste them on a large board and place it somewhere along the highway or byway where a pedestrian may happen to pass in his charlot. The riding pedestrian, seeing the money, is tempted and goes to the pauper (who is a capitalist in disguise) and tries to get some of the money. The pauper persuades the pedestrian that a new car is much more valuable than money, and in a short time has enough material to
